

A BATTLE BETWEEN GIANTS

In Which a Skunk, Helpless On a Floating Ice Cake, Was the Hopeless Victim

My home sets about 150 ft. from the shore where the tide ebbs and flows. To me this coming and going of the tides is an event, and I never tire of watching it from my window. About this time of year the water is full of great ice cakes, which have broken up in the pond above the bridge. At one tide they make their way down as far as Hayden's point only to be driven ashore or back up to the bridge, when the tide turns.

One morning, just before sunrise, the tide was running out and covered with bobbing ice cakes. One big one had been washed into the edge of the current so that it was very near the shore and moving slowly. When it was exactly in front of my home, I noticed a small black object moving along the middle of it. As the sun came up I could see plainly that it was a big black and white skunk which seemed much concerned over a way to get ashore.

I watched him bob back and forth the length of the ice cake many times, until the ice cake had floated some distance down stream and out of the current completely. Suddenly a great flock of sea gulls flew up off the ice which was still clinging to the opposite shore and started up towards the bridge where Mrs. David Pollock feeds them every morning. One gull, which was a big black backed Canadian, did not follow the others but alighted beside the skunk. For a while he watched the skunk then he flew over him and tried to pick him up. The skunk fell off the edge of the cake but was able to crawl back.

This happened several times and finally the gull had hold of the skunk pulling him into the middle of the ice cake. There was still enough life left in the skunk to make it very difficult for the big gull, which was attending strictly to the job of dragging the skunk by flying up and then back and didn't see the great Bald Headed Eagle which swooped down and alighted beside him.

The gull seemed to want no part of the eagle and promptly dropped the skunk and flew off. (During the winter it is not uncommon to see these bald eagles out on the ice here, apparently hunting for food). Mr. Bald Eagle proceeded to tear the skunk to pieces. After some minutes another great bird seemed to drop from nowhere. He was all black and seemed as large again as the bald eagle. At that time I did not know that Bald Eagles are all black until they are three years old, and that they seem much larger than their parents so I was quite excited and had the whole family up and watching the rare sight by this time. The birds fought like roosters, both with feet and beaks.

For hours the battle raged. The sun had gotten high and the glitter of the sun on the ice and water between the cakes was torturing our eyes, but we still watched. Several times we thought the white headed one was killed but soon he'd go back and try to drive the black one away from the skunk.

After a long time the black one won out and the old eagle soared off to a nearby rock to watch the finish of the poor old skunk. The feast continued until the tide turned and the ice cake was again seized by the current and floated back opposite my house.

Then both eagles flew off, the gulls came and inspected the bits of black that were scattered over the whole surface of the ice cake but seemed to find nothing to interest them so flew off again.

I lost no time in looking up the great black bird in my bird book, and was quite disappointed to find that it was not some rare specimen left from the days when all kinds of giant animals and birds were in possession of the earth.

This is only one of the hundreds of interesting things I see every year on this same little body of water that was once one of the busiest places in the State with shipbuilding, lime burning and brickmaking all along its banks. Even "Cuddies" saw no youngsters playing in the swimming hole last summer.

I wonder if this may not make some "Keagite" in far away parts, a bit homesick, because to know the Keag is to always remember and love it and the Keag is the "River." Wessaweskeag means "River of many points."

WITH BLOODY RESULTS

Silent as to its own losses during the terrific battles on Russian soil, the Soviet administration paints a vivid picture of the destruction wrought upon the German forces. The Information Bureau announces in a special communique that during the winter offensive, just closed, the Red Army killed 850,000 Axis troops and captured 343,525. Between Nov. 10 and March 31 the Germans also lost 5090 planes, 9190 tanks and 20,360 guns. Casual readers of the Winter's war stories have been inclined to believe that the Russians were drawing the "long bow" in their claims, but there seems to be a deal of finality about the above figures, which are not punctuated by the word "probably" so often encountered in the American reports. Maybe the Russian picture is overdrawn, but the results would excuse it.

INCOME TAX MUDDLE

To those of us who would like to know where the income tax situation is going to land, in order that we may settle our obligations for 1942, the present Congressional brawl is anything but satisfactory. Much as many persons would like to see it, we have never believed that the Ruml plan would be adopted and have felt that the Republican minority was making a mistake when it championed the cause of complete "forgiveness" of 1942 taxes. And such proved to be the case by a decisive margin. Had the Republicans fought for partial forgiveness—half a year, for the sake of argument—the result might have been different. Total forgiveness, never!

WHAT OUR FORTRESSES DID

From "Somewhere in New Guinea" comes a wartime despatch which will go down in history as another sea epic. It tells the story of how less than a dozen of Gen. MacArthur's flying fortresses "roared down to the very masts" of Japanese warships at Kavieng, New Ireland, sinking two cruisers and a destroyer, and damaging four other destroyers. There were 13 ships in the Jap fleet, and they maintained a terrific anti-aircraft fire, yet so audacious and so successful was the attack that only one of the warships was left undamaged, while all of our fortresses returned safely to their base. It was a typical MacArthur raid.

STRUCK MAJOR BLOWS

Two major blows in 24 hours at two of the best-known centers of Axis war production—that is the latest score for Allied bombers based on Britain. In another devastating night raid on Essen the R.A.F. dropped two-ton "block-busters" at the rate of six a minute, with particular attention to the great 800-acre Krupp plant. Then in a daylight sortie, 133 Flying Fortresses plastered the Renault works at Paris, which has been turning out tanks, trucks and airplane engines for the Nazis.

It was estimated that 900 tons of bombs fell at Essen and probably half that weight of explosive dropped on the Renault factory which had been partially rebuilt since British bombers blasted it a year ago. At that time pictures taken by reconnaissance planes and by Frenchmen on the ground showed three-fourths of the Renault plant flattened. The raid on Essen was the 54th and after the last flatterer blow at Krupp's, R.A.F. pictures showed 48 shops and other units of this key badly damaged.

Judging from other raids these two on Krupp and Renault probably destroyed the equipment for several armored divisions, in addition to the plants. The mounting power of these blows is one of the most heartening aspects of the United Nations war effort. Night after night, day after day, the core of Axis production and transport is being smashed. With Allied bomber fleets growing daily and steadily accelerating the rate of destruction, the effect both on the home and the fighting fronts must soon become marked. The air offensive will not in itself defeat Hitler, but it is definitely softening up his main citadel.—Christian Science Monitor.

SAMOSSET OPENS JULY 1

Announcement was made yesterday that the Samoset Hotel will open July 1. All heads of departments are coming, and despite prevailing conditions a good summer season is expected. The hotel will have a new manager in the person of Robert J. Nutt, a Rockport man who has had charge of the dining room for 39 years.

Goes Over The Top

Rockland Red Cross War Fund Campaign Passes Its Quota

Success has crowned the efforts of the workers in Rockland's Red Cross War Fund campaign. The figures of last night presented by General Chairman Robert C. Gregory, were $8456.18, substantially above the campaign goal of $7345. The drive ends officially April 10, for actual work was delayed by severe weather until March 10, and Chairman Gregory hopes that the final result, including the contributions collected this week at Strand and Park Theatres will be well in excess of the goal set, thus aiding Rockland and Knox County to attain a proud mark in supporting Red Cross war work. The county's quota was set at $18,800, and present reports indicate that when all figures are available it will be exceeded. A breakdown by towns will be presented at an early date.

A Famous Boston Hostelry Changes Hands: Many Improvements Planned

The widely known Hotel Touraine, Boston home of hundreds of Knox County citizens, changed hands this week in one of the most important hotel deals in Boston in many years.

The new owners—The Hotel Touraine Company—headed by George A. Turain, President and Managing Director, Clarence E. Hyde, Treasurer, James P. Flaherty, Clerk of Corporation and Bernard J. Killion, Assistant Treasurer and Director.

For the past several years the owners have been Emile F. Coulon and Louis P. LaFrance.

A number of improvements are contemplated as soon as priorities will permit including sand blasting of the entire structure. The Hotel Touraine first opened its doors to guests on September 8, 1897.

Plane Recognition Is Taught As a Science

The Aircraft Recognition School, conducted for this district in Bangor during the past two months by the U. S. Army Air Force, has brought to light, in some measure, the worth of aircraft recognition and observation posts, thousands of which are sprinkled throughout the United States; and the importance of the civilians who man these posts 24 hours a day.

These special schools, the same as the Army offers its own men, perfect the efficiency of the aircraft warning service. Plane recognition is taught by the "WEPT" method, or by the various characteristics of four things, wings, engine, fuselage and tail. The course offered one week of intensive study and thorough training. The final test of recognition consists of the flashing on a screen of 54 different types of Allied and enemy planes at intervals of only seconds, and the class members must list the planes in the order of their appearance. To do this meant hours of alertness and study.

Eight from this district have taken the course and have been awarded certificates, as instructors having successfully completed the final test. These eight graduates, Leon Bryant of Camden, Nathan Farwell of Waldoboro, Miss Minnie Cramer of Washington, Fred Perkins of Warren, Mrs. Harold Hupper of Tenants Harbor, Miss Alice George of Thomaston, and George Stewart and Mrs. Adelaide Adelman of Rockland, will act as instructors to other observers in this district on methods of plane recognition.

Schools for this district will begin at once, and those interested will contact the chief observer of their post, who will make the necessary arrangements. Only members of the Ground Observer Corps are permitted to attend these classes.

The Army requests that classes be organized at once, by the Post Chief Observers in order that the necessary amount of material may be obtained from the Army by the instructors.

Out of England, where the skies are a battlefield, have come many true stories on the subject of plane recognition, showing how an error in recognition may cost the life of a friend, not foe. For example, only the inaccuracy of two bombardiers prevented a comedy of errors from becoming a tragedy of errors one day last summer. Two Handley-Page Hampdens on patrol saw a destroyer coming down the English Channel, and not recognizing it, made a bombing attack. Suddenly some Messerschmitts came zooming down out of the clouds. They didn't recognize the ship either, but apparently decided that, if it was being bombed by the British, it must be German. They chased the Hampdens away and escorted the destroyer a few miles down the channel—probably the first time a British warship has been given a fighter cover by the Jerries.

Another day, four ground crew men at one airdrome saw a German plane come over for a low attack and dived for their slit trench. After the plane had zoomed by, three of the men jumped out and were promptly machine gunned. The fourth is alive and walking around today because he recognized the plane completely, knew it had a tail gun and stayed in the trench until it was out of range.

R. W. M., 11th District Correspondent.

From Alena Starrett of Warren comes the report of activities in that community:
The first class in identification of airplanes for local air plane spotters was held Tuesday at the Report centre, Fred L. Perkins, Jr., recognition officer in the First Fighter Command, who recently completed a course at Bangor, present as instructor. Mr. Perkins explained the importance of such a course and told also many interesting facts of the school in Bangor. Oscar Wishman of Rockland district director of the 11th District Army Air Forces Observers Corps, introduced by Willis R. Vinal, chief observer, explained the method of obtaining supplementary gas for use in going and from the observation post. A Rockland business man, now deceased, was so fond of peanuts that he bought them by the bushel roasting them whenever he felt the craving. His wife was also a peanut lover, and you couldn't convince the head of the house that they weren't good for rheumatism.

It is reported that one Peter Mackinnon of Portobello, Scotland, has not slept a wink for 26 years, his last nap being May 14, 1916, almost 27 years. He refuses to take anything to cause sleep. For eight years he was under constant supervision to prove this assertion.

In a talk before the Baptist Ladies' Circle in Thomaston recently I expounded somewhat upon my mother's cockery of which I was always justly proud. One delicacy which I mentioned was pumpkin preserves, an article of food, now more or less extinct. A friend who attended the lecture Mrs. J. A. McEvoy of Main street, Thomaston heard what I said about pumpkin preserves, and lo! and behold there came to my desk the other day a delicious sample of her own "putting up." I am very grateful for her thoughtfulness. The preserves lived fully up to my recollections.

Dancing Party At the Masonic Center—Pool Tournament Coming

The Masonic Service Club held its semi-monthly dancing party Saturday night, with about 30 couples in attendance. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Ernest Buswell and Mrs. Donald Haskell, with Dr. Haskell in charge. During an intermission Coast Guardsman John J. Service men not caring to dance were vying with one another at the pool tables in the club rooms.

Plans are being made for a series of pool tournaments to start in another week. Both Navy and Coast Guard will have their regular evenings for the tournaments, prizes will be awarded and refreshments served.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had my life to live again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

ENGLAND TO AMERICA
O towering Daughter, Titan of the West,
Behind a thousand leagues of foam secure;
Thou toward whom our inmost heart is pure
Of ill intent: although thou threatenest
With most unflinching hand thy mother's breast,
Not for one breathing-space may Earth endure
The thought of War's intolerable cure
For such vague pains as vex today thy reel!
But if thou hast more strength than thou canst spend
In tasks of Peace, and find'st her yoke too tame,
Help us to smite the cruel, to befriend the succorless, and put the false to shame.
So shall the ages laud thee, and thy name
Be lovely among nations to the end.

TWICE-A-WEEK

The dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live.—John 5:25.

Book Review

(By K. S. F.)

Stella, A Gentlewoman of the Eighteenth Century. Author Herbert Davis. Published by The Macmillan Company, New York. Dr. Davis tells us after two years' experience as president of Smith College: "I could not help being interested, particularly by Swift's Views on the education of Women, to fit them for their place in civilized society. I was however alarmed to find how far that early eighteenth century view still prevails and shapes our plan of woman's education in this country even today."

Dr. Davis being an authority on Dean Swift and his period, and we all know Stella was the pride and picture of the new middle-class delight of Swift, here presents a gentlewoman who replaced the court lady of the aristocratic tradition. In this book is used the "Journal to Stella," edited by J. K. Moorhead, Everyman's Library, and Swift's Poems.

This book is delightful in the fine scope of intimate history of Swift and Stella, interspersed with poetry—grim, humorous and loving, also much of satire that was second nature to Swift and Stella, was also prone to some sententious overflows and could use satire as well as beauty of cultural thought. (Every reader loves Stella and the fine blending of satire and love and laughter and tenderness that are so well used and harmonized by Jonathan Swift in his written offerings to posterity.

This book is a most charming throw-back in thought and pleasure to past ages that will create much interest and much discussion. Kathleen S. Fuller Paratroops. Author Major P. O. Miksche. Published by Random House, New York.

This second world war has brought about a more than sensational development of all kinds and sizes of airborne forces. And the value of airborne troops that can be rushed to places of need through the skies is more than formidable.

This pioneer work of Major Miksche is about the first book published in English on this subject, and is of vital importance. With diagrams and maps of great help. Air warfare is conducted not merely over whole countries but over whole continents. Its character has become inter-continental! These are all men of fine courage who man these ships of the air and they have already contributed substantially to victory in many battles and countries.

This author seems to like the use of "Airborne troops" instead of his title paratroops. Those landing by means of parachute are called paratroops. This book is a study in the text book form for those in the air services, and gives infinite detail of needs, and as is obvious, a book for intricate study that requires careful attention. Paratroops is a development of the second world war tactical power which has been the greatest sensation in its formidable means of large-scale offensive and speedy maneuver. Major Miksche has done a really great work for men in the air in this book of modern warfare that is so well and clearly explained for both experts and laymen.

Give Rapt Attention To Capt. Whitmore, Who Tells of U-Boat Encounter

At the April 1st meeting of the Sea Scouts, Mach. Mate 2c Hunter Robertson and Sea. 2c John A. Jackson, C. G., gave instruction in Morse and semaphore, using a blinker gun and regulation semaphore flags.

Capt. Charles Whitmore, special guest of the evening, gave a short talk on the value of Sea Scouting. In the course of his talk, the Captain remarked that he considered Sea Scout training to be of great value and that it would continue to be of help in later life, no matter what one's profession or business might be. He also gave a brief resume of his experiences at sea and his encounters with U-boats.

New recruits present were Albert Hallowell, William Folland, Walter Griffin and Clifford Cameron. Hallowell, Folland and Cameron have passed their apprentice test and are working on their ordinary requirements. Hallowell brought in a very detailed model of a top-sail schooner, of the 1812 period, for his ordinary requirement for rigging of sailing craft.

Coxswain Charles "Bud" Whitmore, son of Cap. Whitmore, gave instruction in splicing and use of a "hollock" marine spike. This new Marine spike seems to work good and appears much more efficient than the regulation type.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Rev. Bruce F. Hunt, born of missionary parents in Korea, will speak at the First Baptist Church tonight at 7.30. Mr. Hunt, who was imprisoned in October, 1941, presumably on the charge of sedition, will tell about Japanese prison and concentration camps. Everyone is invited to attend the service.

Twenty members were on the program at the "group sing" at Community Building Sunday afternoon, including two written by Rockland talent having a part in the program. Dr. C. Harold Jameson was leader; Mrs. Ruth E. Sanborn was pianist and Miss Bertha Luce, violinist. Miss Luce played two selections, "Songs My Mother Taught Me," and "Grandfather's Clock." Mrs. Charles A. Emery is calling a meeting of the Rockland Servicemen's Club committee to be held in the service room Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock.

The Junior Auxiliary of the Methodist Church will meet Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Fred Anderson, Chestnut street. The hostesses are Miss Marguerite deRochemont, Mrs. Fred Goodnow, Mrs. Norman Kallach and Mrs. Eleanor Thompson.

The local War Price & Rationing Board remind all who are appointed official OPA tire inspectors in Knox County of the tire inspector's meeting which will be held at the City Building, Thursday, April 8 at 8 p. m. The meeting will be conducted by Louis F. Davis, Regional Tire Examiner of the Boston Office of Price Administration, and without doubt Mr. Davis will be in a position to give out information that will be of real benefit to each and every inspector, and we would suggest that you come prepared to ask any questions you may have in your mind pertaining to the inspection program.

A meeting of the directors of the Home For Aged Women will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 at the home of Mrs. Frank W. Fuller, Talbot avenue. A full attendance is desired as matters of importance will be discussed.

The Woman's Association of the Congregational Church will meet Wednesday at 3 p. m. in the church parlors. Mrs. Eva Sleeper is chairman of the committee which will serve tea.

The many friends of Chester Wyllie will be happy to know he is to be the soloist at the Quiet Hour service in the Universalist vestry Thursday evening. Dr. Lowe will speak on Kindness, the Fifth Milestone On the Way To Spiritual Power. Friends are requested to arrive a little before 7.30 because of the nature of the service.

LENTEN SERVICES

April 8 will give to the deeply interested followers of the strengthening and highly appreciated services conducted by Dr. John Smith Lowe through the Lenten period, his fifth milestone, subject "Kindness." Never was the world more in need of the kindly handshake, the friendly word of the God bless you attitude of neighborliness than today. The soloist, Chester Wyllie, is always worthy of close attention to his fine selections of songs and delightful voice and manner of singing. He has sympathy and beauty of religious understanding in his attitude and voice.

Save Thursday evening from 7.30 to 8.30 for prayerful devotion in preparation for Easter of 1943.

The "Physical Fitness Program" for high school students and other young people was discussed by Thomas B. Keady, director of physical education and athletic coach at Rockland High School before Kiwanians at their meeting at the Hotel Rockland last night. Capt. Thomas J. Sweeney was guest of a member. Arthur F. Lamb, secretary, reported that H. Laton Jackson had been made a member of the board of directors and that Mr. Jackson, David G. Hodgkins, Jr., and Mr. Lamb constituted the membership committee. President Richard P. Bird read a letter from Brewer Club inviting Rockland Kiwanians to send a delegation to an inter-city meeting at the Bangor House, April 21. Mr. Keady was introduced by Dr. Lloyd M. Richardson, program chairman for April.

The 2nd War Loan Starts April 12

13 billion dollars must be raised!

THE GOVERNMENT of the United States is asking us to lend it 13 billion dollars in the next few weeks. We can do it. And we must do it. Every American must realize the truth:

In this, our toughest war, we've made a good start. We've trained a lot of men—made a lot of weapons—built a lot of ships.

But it's only a start. No man or woman among us would contend for a single instant that we're doing enough now to win this war!

We've Got to Build More!

We broke all records building 8 million tons of shipping last year. But grim-faced Army and Navy men will tell you that the 18 MILLION tons we're building this year still won't be enough!

We've Got to Fight More!

From now till this war is won, America must be on the offensive. In ever-increasing numbers, your sons, brothers, husbands must go into actual battle. Our losses have already begun to mount—and they will not grow less.

And We've Got to Buy More War Bonds!

Sure we're all buying War Bonds now. But we've got to help pay for our increased fighting and building . . . We've got to match, as best we can, the sacrifice of those Americans who are toiling and sweating on a dozen battle-fronts—with the bloodiest yet to come. The blunt fact is this: to keep our war machine going, we've got to dig up 13 billion extra dollars this month. 13 billion dollars over and above our regular War Bond buying!

In the next few weeks you may be visited by one of the thousands of volunteers who are contributing their time and effort to this Drive. But don't wait for him. Make up your mind now that before this drive is over, you're going to march right down to your nearest bank, Post Office, or place where they sell War Bonds, and do your duty. And don't ever forget this: in doing your duty, you're doing yourself one of the biggest favors of your life!

For United States War Bonds are the greatest investment in the world—bar none. They're investments tailored to fit your particular situation. And they give you the chance of a lifetime to order and get the kind of world you want to live in after this war. Every cent you put in War Bonds now will help to guarantee plenty of peacetime jobs making peace-living for every one of us.

For your Country's sake—for your own sake—invest all you can!

There Are 7 Different Types of U. S. Government Securities—Choose The Ones Best Suited For You:

United States War Savings Bonds—Series E: The perfect investment for individual and family savings. Gives you back $4 for every $3 when the Bond matures. Designed especially for the smaller investor. Dated 1st day of month in which payment is received. Interest: 2.9% a year if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1000. Redemption: any time 60 days after issue date. Price: 75% of maturity value.

2½% Treasury Bonds of 1964-1969: Readily marketable, acceptable as bank collateral, these Bonds are ideal investments for trust funds, estates and individuals. A special feature provides that they may be redeemed at par and accrued interest for the purpose of satisfying Federal estate taxes. Dated April 15, 1943; due June 15, 1969. Denominations: $500, $1000, $5000, $10,000, $100,000—also $1,000,000 if registered. Redemption: Not callable till June 15, 1964; thereafter at par and accrued interest on any interest date at 4 months' notice. Subject to Federal taxes only. Price: par and accrued interest.

Other Securities: Series "C" Tax Notes; ½% Certificates of Indebtedness; 2% Treasury Bonds of 1950-1952; United States Savings Bonds Series "F"; United States Savings Bonds Series "G."

CHAPTER III

"When Bulkeley got back he took one look at me and ordered me to the hospital at Corregidor. But when we got there they told us that beautiful big modern one-thousand-bed hospital had been abandoned. There it was, I don't know how much it had cost, as useless to us as a Buddhist monastery. The patients had all been moved down into one hundred beds in one of the tunnels in the Rock. I wasn't so delirious that I couldn't figure out why. Because with no aircraft or anti-aircraft protection, that big expensive top-side hospital was just an unprotected target.

"The next I remember was down in the tunnel in the army hospital under Corregidor. The army doctor asking me what treatment I'd had as he cut the shirt off my back—it wouldn't come off over my hand any more. When he found out I hadn't had any sulfa pills, he gave me a big mouthful of them to chew. He said I'd probably lose the whole arm because blood poisoning had set in solid clear to the shoulder, but he'd do what he could, and in a few minutes more I was flat on my back with my arm packed tight in hot-water bags.

"But the thing that impressed me most—even then—was the army nurses. There were fourteen of them on the Rock, and remember, I hadn't talked to a white woman since we sailed from the States. Heretofore, I hadn't paid much attention to women, but somehow the war and everything made a big difference.

"Or maybe it was Peggy herself, because she was a very cute kid, very trim, but mostly it was her green eyes, I guess, and a cute way she had of telling you very firmly what you had to do, so that you grinned, but just the same you did it. She started right in bossing me around while she helped cut off my shirt.

"But don't think I didn't have competition. The Rock was built to accommodate four thousand men, but eleven thousand were already jammed in there, each of whom would have given his right ear for even a look from one of those fourteen girls. So I later on she got to like me pretty well, Peggy can't ever say she didn't have a selection to choose from. Competition was pretty stiff.

"By the time I left that hospital, I think almost all of those fourteen girls were engaged.

"Because I was the only naval officer in this army hospital, I got to be a kind of pet with the nurses—I was their curiosity. Another reason might have been that I was always trying to cheer them up. The doctors were all reservists, going around with long faces, singing the blues about the way the war was going. I kept saying hell no, we weren't licked yet, and then what did they mean, the folks at home had forgotten us—of course they hadn't. Didn't they hear the radio from the States and what it was saying about our fight? I always had a cheerful angle on anything for the girls, and they began calling me their one-man morale officer."

"The whole army was listening in," said Bulkeley. "Don't tell that Manila radio announcer who they say was shot by the Japs the first day they entered the city, was always encouraging. And there more was KGEI from the American west coast, telling us we wouldn't be forgotten, that the people knew we were putting up a magnificent fight."

"It came at eleven at night," Bulkeley went on. "I had my three boats out there by 11:30. Funny thing, that old ship had been an aircraft carrier in the battle of Jutland—first boat ever to launch a plane in actual battle. She survives the whole German Imperial fleet and more than twenty years later ends up on an American mine halfway round the world."

"When we got there, survivors were so thick we didn't have to zig-zag to pick them up—just went straight ahead and we got all we could handle. And there more was coming out of the darkness all around. Finally our shoulders got so weak pulling them up the sea ladder that we couldn't lift them. So we'd throw lines out into the dark—it was like casting for trout—and haul them back with a dozen people hanging on. We'd just pull them on in—scraping off a few ears, and now and then a nose and plenty of skin, and the side of our heads—they were drowning every minute and it was the only way. Our boat managed to rescue as many as 196. Had 'em lying and standing every place."

"But the queerest thing came at the end. The cries out in the darkness had almost stopped, and we were cruising for the crumbs when suddenly, out over the water, I heard someone whistling a tune! I couldn't believe it. But we changed course, and presently came alongside an aviator. He'd been blown away out there along with three life belts. He'd put one of them under his feet, and another under his head like a pillow, and the third under his behind. Had his hands comfortably folded on his stomach. He thanked us, said he couldn't swim, so he'd been whistling just to kill time until someone came along. Asked if there was anything he could do. That guy had plenty guts."

"Six of the survivors died before we could land them—exposure and burns."

"They began bringing them into my hospital before dawn," said Kelly. "One of them was a Filipino boy who'd been second engineer. He'd been burned all over except where his shorts had been, and he screamed horribly when they sprayed his burns. They'd put him in the stuff wagon, but an army doctor felt his pulse and said, 'Hell, that man's not dead,' so they sent him here. It hurt so bad to touch him when they had to turn him for spraying that he finally persuaded the nurses to lift him by the hair on his head."

"Meanwhile gloomy talk was getting me worried about the whole picture, and the next day the skipper here came in to see me—" said Lieut. R. B. Kelly. "They'd sent him over on courier duty. He was looking pretty grim. When I asked him about these rumors concerning the air corps, he said it had practically been annihilated—we only had six P-40's left, and that was why everything was going to hell. The Japs had wiped out Clark and Nichols Fields and also Iba, except for a few scattered planes. Also they had got seven of the navy's fourteen PBV's—clipped them off neatly when they had landed for gas. One of them had been the navy plane which hit Colin Kelly's battleship before he finally got it."

"Yet I couldn't see how they had done it, until a few days later when they began moving patients from the Manila hospital (it was the fore-runner of evacuation, although we didn't guess that yet) into Corregidor. In the cot on my left was a Texas kid, a pilot from Clark Field. On the other side was an Ohio pilot from Iba. Texas was pretty sick, so the first night I shot the breeze with the Ohio boy. He said he'd been shot down the second day of

"Our coastal batteries were having a fall back."

The war. His squadron had been circling, looking for Jap planes which the listening devices had picked up at sea, heading in from the direction of Formosa. They'd been up all morning, were almost out of gas, so decided to land and refuel. The first plane came in all right, but the second overshot the field. His plane was the third, and he said as he put his wheels on the ground a load of bombs crashed down out of the clouds onto the other end of the field. Of course he poured the soup into her and took off. He tried to gain altitude and headed for Nichols Field, when suddenly a flight of Jap fighters popped out of the clouds. He turned and headed right for the center of it, but when he pressed the button only one of his six guns would work—the rest were jammed. He said don't ask him why—ask the guys who designed them or installed them or serviced them. His job was just to press the button, and he'd done that. There he was with two Zeros on his tail, filling him full of holes—they were exploding bullets, too; he had gashes all over where he'd been nicked. He said he dove into the sea, and he was the only one to survive. He'd been rescued as many as 196. Had 'em lying and standing every place."

"The next day Tex on the other side told me his story. He was also a fighter pilot and his squadron had been at Clark Field—flying all morning. They'd come down to gas the planes, and the pilots were sitting around on the wings or in their cock-pits, waiting for orders to take off, when suddenly there was a big bang and the plane he was sitting in seemed to jump about forty feet in the air, and then pancaked back with its wings folded over the cockpit. The Japs had popped out of a cloud and let them have it. He crawled out unscathed, but he said for half an hour everything was in the wildest confusion—the Japs circling above, blowing those grounded planes around like popcorn in a hot skillet.

"The dope on the listening devices seemed to be, he said, that they had picked up the Japs a hundred miles at sea, followed them in all right, but then lost when they were fifteen miles off the coast.

"But somebody decided the Japs must be heading for Baguio, and they were sitting there, all gassed up, waiting word to take off and intercept the Japs before they got to Baguio. Whereas, as a matter of fact, the Japs were perched in a cloud right over their own field, waiting to let them have it."

"He said after the bombing they'd managed to piece together out of the wreckage about ten per cent of the planes they'd originally had. A week later he'd cracked up landing on a soft spot on the field—a bomb crater that hadn't been properly filled—and here he was."

"The next time the skipper here dropped in on me, he said that was the dope he was getting—that we had only six P-40's left. Soon it got down to two; we called 'em the Phantom and the Lone Ranger."

"And I said, 'God, what's going to happen to us?'" said Kelly. "I told him I didn't know," said Bulkeley, "but that I'd been talking to the Admiral, who'd said that we couldn't possibly hope to hold the Philippine Islands, that Singapore and Hong Kong would fall too, unless help arrived—and soon. And probably the Dutch East Indies."

"Well, that floored me," said Kelly. "So I asked him how they were going to use the MTB's—wouldn't they let us go out on any offensive missions? He said he'd been trying to get the Admiral to let him go to Lingayen Gulf on a raid. Eighty Jap transports were up there landing troops, and our coastal batteries were having to fall back because of Jap air superiority—Jap fighters diving on the batteries and machine-gunning them until no one could take it."

"Then I asked the skipper how the infantry was holding. 'Not worth a damn,' he said. 'The strafing is just cutting them to ribbons. Not only that, but the Japs are landing tanks—a hell of a lot of automatic weapons which are just what we need and haven't got. By the time he left, I was as low as he was."

"That night Peggy, who was on night duty, got a few minutes off about one o'clock to come in and shoot the breeze with me. She'd been picking up a lot of stuff, and she said a bunch of our tank-corps boys had just been brought in. She told me what they'd been telling her, and finally said she guessed it wouldn't hurt if I went in and lay down for half an hour on an empty bunk next to me, so I could hear it myself."

"They'd walked two hundred kilometers barefoot. Four tankloads of them had been sent in to head off a Jap landing near Batangas—they were to go ahead of four columns of infantry and pave the way for retaking a little fishing village held by a small Jap force."

"The boys said their major had assured them the Japs had nothing bigger than 50-caliber machine guns—of course their armor would stop that. So they started on in, when all of a sudden—Bam! The Japs had waited until they got within good range, and then opened up with an all-right, but the second overshot the field. His plane was the third, and he said as he put his wheels on the ground a load of bombs crashed down out of the clouds onto the other end of the field. Of course he poured the soup into her and took off. He tried to gain altitude and headed for Nichols Field, when suddenly a flight of Jap fighters popped out of the clouds. He turned and headed right for the center of it, but when he pressed the button only one of his six guns would work—the rest were jammed. ahead—seem like a damn-fool maneuver to you? I asked him.

"Well," the kid said, "the major and the lieutenant had worked out the same maneuver at armored school back in the States. It had worked there; they thought it was pretty good."

"So I asked the kid why he thought it hadn't worked this time. 'Maybe because the Japs were too clever in hiding their anti-tank guns and too good shots. They knocked the treads and doors off most of the tanks before they had time to do anything. And then, unlike the roads back in the States, these were narrow native roads, with rice paddies on both sides—you couldn't maneuver.'"

At The Capitol

Maine's summer hotels could be granted four months liquor licenses by the State Liquor Commission, if the local electorate approved by referendum vote in a State election, under legislation signed tonight by Governor Sumner Sewall.

The bill, sponsored by Representative Cleveland Sleeper, Jr., Rockland, and rejected by previous Legislatures, provided for the issuance of permits for June, July, August and September.

Sleeper also was sponsor of the bill, which also provided protection against foreclosure and forced sale of property. Sleeper said he introduced the bill at the behest of the Maine Hotel Association. An unsuccessful move to indefinitely postpone the legislation was made by Representative Ella, North Anson, who alleged that the proposal was unconstitutional because it "impaired the obligation of contracts."

Several members of the Judiciary Committee, which favored the measure, said it did not violate the State Constitution because it did not seek to avoid compliance with obligation of contracts, but simply deferred those obligations.

EGG ECONOMY

Do you know that when you buy a dozen standard size eggs you are buying a pound and a half of finest quality protein, or egg "meat"—not to mention their vitamin and mineral values?

It is good food economy to give eggs refrigerator care and cook them properly so they can be served at their best.

Since many egg dishes are cooked over a top burner, it pays to remember that quick cooking at high temperature toughens an egg, so keep the gas flame turned low. Hard-cooked eggs are really better started in cold water and simmered gently after the water has been brought to a boil. Soft custards and egg-thickened dishes are more successful in a double boiler.

Moderate to low temperature goes for baking as well. If baked at too high a temperature, overcooked custard will "water," cheese soufflé will be less fluffy, and merguez on pies and desserts will be ropey. These bake best at 300 degrees Fahrenheit. For angel and sponge cakes, set the heat control at 325 degrees, and for bread pudding, 350 degrees.

A State Conference

Maine D. A. R.'s Crowded Lots of Business Into Abbreviated Session

Mrs. Carl P. Snow of Rockland, State Chairman for the Knox Memorial; and Mrs. Charles B. Rose, Tenant's Harbor, State Treasurer represented Lady Knox Chapter at the D.A.R. State Conference in Lewiston. It was deemed advisable to have only the one day session and confine it strictly to business. Mary Dillingham Chapter, hostess Chapter for the Conference, provided a very pleasant reception at the Hotel DeWitt for those officers and members who were in the city Tuesday night. Four girls—members of the James Goff Society C.A.R. of Lewiston—repeated a program which had been given recently over the radio, telling something of the founding of the C.A.R. and requirements for membership.

Conference greetings, Wednesday, were extended by the following: Mary Dillingham Chapter by Mrs. William Schoppe; the City of Auburn by Mayor Kenneth L. Green; National Vice President General Mrs. Fred C. Morgan; the Honorary State Regents by Mrs. Victor A. Binford and response by the State Vice Regent Mrs. Leroy P. Hussey.

The Conference had about 150 in attendance. Mrs. Arthur Gosline, State Regent presided. Luncheon was served by the women of the Universalist Church. Greetings were brought by Judge Herbert Foster of Winthrop, President of the Maine Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and Miss Carmeta Appleby, Lisbon Falls, president of the American Revolution Children of the American Revolution. Gov. and Mrs. Sewall sent regrets, as well as a beautiful basket of flowers as an expression of their good wishes.

A service honoring deceased members was conducted by the State Chaplain, Lady Knox Chapter paid tribute to five loyal members who have passed on this year. Mrs. Helen Hyde Carlson, Miss Ada Perry, Mrs. Euberta Annatoy, Mrs. Butman and Mrs. Etta Noyes.

The reports of the State Officers and Chairmen showed no lack of interest in the war effort. The Junior American Citizens Clubs are the means of training the children to become good American citizens.

In Maine alone there are 422 Clubs with membership of 13,000. Opportunity Farm also comes in for a large share of help from the Maine D.A.R. This past year contributions totaling $1130, has been given by Chapter and individual members as well as many boxes that were sent at Christmas.

The Student Loan Fund has been a great help to those young people who wish to continue their college education.

Not only several thousands of hours were given over to sewing, knitting and the making of surgical dressings for the Red Cross but women are doing their part in every capacity for the Conservation of human life as well as that of food and other essentials.

The drawing of the Good Citizenship Pilgrim to represent the Maine Society is always a matter of interest. This year the name drawn was that of Miss Eleanor Mosher of Wilton, sponsored by the Colonial Daughters Chapter, Farmington.

The Resolution proposed by Mrs. William B. Cushman, regent of Elizabeth Wadsworth Chapter, Portland, "that the Maine Society Daughters of the American Revolution reaffirm their dedication to the services of the United States and Civilian Defense and to continue their help in every war effort" was unanimously adopted by the Conference and furnished the keynote for the entire Conference.

ABSENT FROM THE BODY

[For The Courier-Gazette]
When I am absent from this home
Where, for so long my soul has stayed
Shall I return once more to roam
In spirit where these seasons fade?
Shall I return when bluebirds sing
When Spring comes back to earth again?
When through the air their carols ring
And rainbows gleam through April's rain?
Only God knows, if such be so,
My soul will yearnward wing its way
And round these earth scenes to and fro
Tiresome His mandates I'll obey.
Only God knows what work for us
Through endless ages He has planned
Over all time He triumphs thus
Has countless souls at His command.
So up and down the world they go
That loving mandate to fulfill
Glad ministering spirits to and fro,
To work unseen His wondrous will.

"THEY ALSO SERVE"

[For The Courier-Gazette]
At home, alone in a New England city,
A patient mother knits with ageing hands,
The room is chill, but she feels no
self-pity—
(Her chaplain son is bound for foreign lands).
She cheerfully accepts allotted rations:
At lack of fuel oil she'd never chide;
Her sacrifices sans public avowal
Her only aim the freedom may abide.
In bustling war plants, grimly alert
For duty,
Our women fold on the assembly line;
The pairs they handle have an eerie beauty
Fascinating which they cannot quite define.
Their men, (upon whose love the whole world pivots)
Form fighting ranks 'mid hardships
no one knows;
So, steadily they work with bolts and rivets
To fashion grisly death for fiendish foes.
A few brief days or hours as the mere pittance
Of married bliss a soldier's bride may know.
They give their all, and with this brave remembrance
Bless the departing heroes, soften the blow
Of separation; and through months of waiting
Cradle his child beneath their valiant hearts.
His birth the loneliness and fears equating
(At thought of these a tender tear drop starts).
And kiddies—praying for an absent father
Strive to take his place as best they may Caring for mother, even though they'd rather (Childlike) remain engrossed in care-less play.
They, too, have their part in the endeavor
To save the world from brutal tyranny—
And pave the way for peace (we hope) forever.
That man may live from war-lords free.

MY MOUNTAIN

[For The Courier-Gazette]
My mountain stands a watchman
To me it called: "I am your home
With rugged sweeps of forest
And rocky peaks wind blown.
I loved to climb, then rest me
Where I breathe pure air alone.
Apart from all world contact
Near heavens soft sweeping clouds
Where orchestras of singing winds
Would clear my heart from thoughtless sins.
With only birds for neighbors there
I'd find for thoughts and fervent prayer.
Within my mountain sheltered
Were ghosts as well as fairies.
And living springs of liquid life
To soothe away the aches and strife
This war torn world now carries
That why this mountain wins my taries.

Lord Montagu Again

Camden Deals Figure In Two Suits Brought By Him In Portland Court

A civil action involving an alleged transaction of real estate at Camden has been brought in the U. S. District Court at Portland, by Lord Edward F. Montagu of Camden, scion of a prominent British family, against Thomas J. Watson of New Canaan, Conn., president of the International Business Machines Corporation of New York.

Lord Montagu alleges in his complaint that he entered into an agreement with Watson on or about April 15, 1942, whereby the latter undertook to sell, assign or transfer to him land and buildings at Camden. Lord Montagu alleges that Watson has failed and refused to execute a deed of the property to him.

Lord Montagu asks that Judge John A. Peters, who has scheduled the hearing for April 16, determine and decree damages and also, if Watson is unable to perform the alleged contract, to assess damages.

Lord Montagu also filed in the same action details of an alleged transaction with Watson regarding acquisition of a large yacht, the Aeolus, but Judge Peters Thursday at a pre-trial conference with attorneys to simplify the issues eliminated this alleged transaction from the case.

Judge Peters said in a finding filed in the Clerk's Office Friday afternoon that it appeared in the complaint that Lord Montagu is an alien and as such could not enforce an agreement for purchase of an American vessel from an American citizen without the prior consent of the Maritime Commission; and, as Lord Montagu offered no evidence of such consent, all issues relating to sale of the vessel are eliminated from the case.

Since occupying the Watson estate Lord Montagu has been involved in various financial difficulties at Rockland and in Boston.

He was represented at the pre-trial conference Friday by Attorneys Albert Knudsen of Portland and Nathan Finks of Boston; Watson by Attorneys Leon V. Walker of Portland and Alan L. Bird of Rockland.

Lord Montagu's complaint further alleged that on or about April 15, 1942 Watson undertook to sell, assign or transfer to him the yacht Aeolus and the land and buildings at Camden, in payment for which was executed an assignment for $45,000. Lord Montagu alleges that he occupied the premises "in consequence of the transfer" and "exercised control and dominion over it" but that Watson "has failed, neglected and refused to execute a deed of land and buildings."

Lord Montagu also set forth that he has made extensive repairs on the vessel for which Lord Montagu said is legally liable and he has incurred other expenses in connection with the alleged ownership of the boat.

Watson has refused to execute a bill of sale for the vessel to him, Lord Montagu complains.

Lord Montagu set forth that in payment for the property he had transferred to Watson an expected $45,000 share, plus interest of 3 per cent, in an estate now being liquidated in Cincinnati.

In The Spring

Ganders Lose, the Skippers Lose, Der Captain Takes It On The Chin

In the Spring a bowler's fancy lightly turns to his average for the season and some of the Skipper-Gander combination have been amusing and instructing themselves of late in figuring out how the old average has stood up during the Winter months. After the match Monday night of last week in which the Skippers took the second straight game from the nose-diving Ganders, somebody asked the Goose about his average and he was too discouraged to make any reply. "Three weeks from next Tuesday I'll have the figures for you," he said, "but just now I have other troubles to think about." One of his "other troubles" was the 124 score the Ganders made as a team total and the 255 the old Goose made himself.

If "Uncle Harry" Young had not had a bad crack in his neck the chances are that the Ganders would have taken an awful shellacking for Uncle Harry was so crippled up at the first part of the match that he had hard work to get a ball down the alley. Too close attention to the cord-wood pile was the reason for said "crick" and not until he had limbered up a bit was Uncle Harry able to get a respectable score.

If Gene Hall had been on hand he would have expressed very little sympathy with Uncle Harry over his misfortune. Gene always said anybody who would saw wood deserved no better fate than what he would get, and that was generally plenty. Gene's motto when it concerned a wood-pile was, "Just tell 'em that you saw me but you didn't see me saw."

With the Skippers a couple of games ahead and the season about ready to close, the Ganders are hollering their heads off for the dinner they won off the Skippers some three weeks back, but the Skippers kept putting them off, saying with rationing, and high tide all the time so they can't dig any clams, and the herring not struck as yet, chances for a feed are very poor.

The only hope they hold out to the hungry Ganders is that possibly, only possibly, mind you, they might be able to secure up a mess of dandelion greens in a few weeks, provided, and please note the proviso, one of the Skippers could persuade his wife to dig them.

All in all the chances for this dinner the Ganders won are about as bright as the chances of the Ganders to win any more games this season, and those chances are smaller than Der Captain's cigar butt, after a close match. The score:

Ganders—Sanborn 253, Grimes 239, Anderson 251, Libby 246, Arey the Goose 266, total 1244.

Skippers—Guilford 282, Peterson 274, Drew 268, Young 223, Shields 282, total 1329.

RIVERS AND LAKES OF MAINE

In vacation time The Courier-Gazette has frequent calls for this classic and again gives it place in this column for the convenience of inquirers.

Oh, the lovely rivers and lakes of Maine! I am charmed with their names, as my song will explain: Aboriginal muses inspire my strain, While I sing the bright rivers and lakes of Maine— From Cupiscot to Shepumatcook, From Sagadahock to Pohenegamook— Gamook, gamook, Pohenegamook, From Sagadahock to Pohenegamook.

For light serenading the "Blue Mosele," "Bonnie Doon" and "Sweet Avon" may do very well; But the rivers of Maine, in their wild solitudes, Bring a thunderous sound from the depths of the woods: The Aroostook and Chippewasamook, The Chippewasamook and Chippewasamook, "Bamtook, bamtook, Chippewasamook, The Chippewasamook and Chippewasamook.

Behold! how they sparkle and flash in the sun! The Mattawamkeag and the Muscongus, The Kingley Penobscot, the wild Woolastook, Kennebec, Kennebec and Sebasticook, The pretty Presumpscot and gay Tuftonic, The Esquisagook and little Schoodic, Schoodic, Schoodic, The little Schoodic, The Esquisagook and little Schoodic.

Yes, yes, I prefer the bright rivers of Maine To the Rhine or the Rhone, or the Seine, These may do for the cockney, but give me some nook On the Ammonoosuc or the Wytopitlock, On the Umsaka or the Ripogenis, The Ripogenis or the Piscataquis— "Aquis, aquis, The Piscataquis, The Ripogenis or the Piscataquis.

"Away down South," the Cherokee Has named his rivers the Tennessee, The Chattahoochee and the Ocmulgee, The Congaree and the Ochopee; But what are they, or the Frenchy Detroit, To the Passadumkeag or the Wassataquoit? "Touquoit, touquoit, The Wassataquoit, To the Passadumkeag or the Wassataquoit?

The Hard Of Hearing

Many Matters of Interest Discussed At Meeting Of Local Society

The Rockland Society for the Hard of Hearing met with Mrs. Bessie Hewett Thursday. Nominations were made for the board of managers of the American Society for the Hard of Hearing and a contribution voted to the Eastern Zone Financial Fund of which Miss Dorothy Dorr of Bangor is chairman.

A letter from Mrs. Agnes McGill of Beverly, Mass., Eastern Zone vice president, announced that Dr. Warren H. Gardner, president of the American Society, in co-operation with the ODT, had cancelled all plans for national and zone conferences for the duration. In their place small regional meetings in May are being arranged. Mrs. Louise Durgin of Portland has been appointed program chairman, and will be assisted by Miss Eliza Hannegan, Portland and Mrs. Nancy Brown of the Zone executive committee for Maine.

The theme of the meeting will be "Keyed to the Changing Times" and subjects to be taken up are: Social Service, Medical and Otolgical, Chapter Problems, Children and Audiometer Tests, Lip Reading and Teachers and Post War Aims and Purposes.

Lessons for the month have been in charge of Mrs. Gladys Thomas and Mrs. Blanche Witham. Special subjects for practice were given by Mrs. Thomas on "Historic Boston in War Times," observations made on her recent visit, and "Carrier Pigeons in the Service;" by Mrs. Brown, "The Four Freedoms" based on the four essays with illustrations by Norman Rockwell, recently featured by the Saturday Evening Post and "Madame Chiang at Madison Square Garden." An interesting program of the occasion was shown by Mrs. Hewett whose granddaughter, Miss Mary Pierce of Milton, Mass., was a member of the Westminster Choir at Princeton, N. J., which participated in the program. Tea and refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held Thursday at 2.30 in the vestry of the First Baptist Church.

The Rotary Club

Interesting Talk On "China" By Past President of Canton Rotary Club

Benjamin B. Anthony of Bear Hill, Rockport, a past president of the Canton, China, Rotary Club was guest speaker at meeting of the club held at the Hotel Rockland Friday noon.

Mr. Anthony, who was representative of the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., in Canton several years, addressed the club on the topic, "China." During his thoughtful address he referred to Japan's slogan, "Asia for the Asiatics;" sketched the political history of China immediately preceding the war; discussed Japan's strength, and answered the question, "Can China Hold Out?"

"China can hold out for years because of the strong nationalist feeling which has been fostered throughout the land by the Kuomintang party and because of her type of civilization. Over 95 percent of the Chinese are farmers who live by the soil. Their wants are simple and mostly satisfied on their own farms," Mr. Anthony stressed.

The speaker emphatically stated: "I am one of those who believe that America's main offensive should be in the far East, not in Europe. I cannot agree that it is time enough to attend to Japan after Hitler is finished. Our supplies of tin, rubber, wolfram and other commodities essential to our home front, come from the East. Why allow Japan to consolidate her position in these vital necessities? We don't get them from Europe. Nor do I think it is a good idea for Churchill to talk of partial demobilization of the British army after the European war is finished. As I see it, it is all one war and we should all pitch in until the Axis is defeated."

Mr. Anthony was introduced by Charles F. Sheldon, program chairman for April. President Maurice F. Lovejoy, appointed Louis A. Walker, Joseph W. Robinson and Theodore S. Bird as an "On to Lewiston" committee for conference to be held in that city April 23 and 30.

Visiting Rotarians were: Gilbert Harmon and Charles E. Lord of Camden; and Arthur Stevens and Victor E. Marshall of Augusta. Guests of members were: Dr. Burnham S. Walker of Boston, Capt. Charles H. Whitmore and Capt. Thomas J. Sweeney of Rockland. Fifty-six were present.

CHARLES H. KEENE

Charles H. Keene, 68, a native of Passadumkeag, died in Boston Sunday. Mr. Keene went to that city at the age of 14, finding employment with the Quincy Cold Storage and Warehouse Company. Diligent work brought him prompt promotion, and at the time of his retirement last year, after 47 years of service he was serving as general manager and was considered one of the ablest cold-storage authorities in the country.

His death brings sorrow to a wide circle of friends, many of whom belong in Rockland, where he had been a frequent visitor for a number of years. He is survived by his wife, a son Norman, and two grandchildren. The deceased was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Freeman S. Young of Rockland.

This And That

This is a fine luncheon or supper dish:

Peanut-Sweet Potato Patties

Boil three medium-sized sweet potatoes, drain, peel and mash. Add two tablespoons butter, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper and two tablespoons brown sugar, and beat well. Fold in one-half cup roasted peanuts, coarsely chopped. Shape mixture into flat cakes and roll in dry bread crumbs. Dip each cake into a mixture of one slightly beaten egg and one tablespoon water and roll again in crumbs. Pan-fry in hot fat until golden brown. Drain on yield: Six portions.

Charles T. Smalley Showed Colored Pictures At Sunday Meeting

The Youth Fellowship of the Universalist Church met Sunday evening in the vestry. A large group was present—many of the younger boys and girls were taken into the Y.P.C.U. at this meeting.

The devotionals were led by Virginia Bowley, Kathleen Weed, Helvi Laitinen, Nada Cary and Louise Kirt.

Charles T. Smalley showed some of his very interesting and beautiful colored pictures—taking in his trips to Florida and also showing New England scenes. These were enjoyed by all present.

Refreshments were served. Those present were Dr. and Mrs. Lowe, Virginia Bowley, Lucille Stanley, Kathleen Weed, Celia and Louise Kirk, Nada Cary, Helvi Laitinen, Russell Williamson, and Burnell Mark of the old members, and Nathalie Post, Betsy Cooper, Patricia Dodge, Virginia Barnard, Elaine Christoffersen, Donald Marsh, Dwight Chamberlain, Philip Gray, and Robert McIntosh of the new members.

It is hoped that movies will be shown at next week's meeting.

PAPER SERIALLY

Work Wonders

WASHINGTON—AND YOU

By Margaret Chase Smith

Washington, March 31—I am writing this while in Norfolk as a member of the Naval Affairs subcommittee. Have seen the Yorktown and the Mobile at the Newport News shipyard. Have seen army and naval activities and talked with civilians since coming to Norfolk. Everything is much the same as in our own State. Because of expansion due to war, there are inconveniences and discomforts, but all appear determined to do the job before them well. Local citizens are doing their best to contend with the problems before them. We have held public hearings daily from 9 to 6, listened to the commandant of the Norfolk Naval Area, to the City Manager, and heard other groups the balance of the week, returning to Washington Sunday.

The government is giving a great deal of attention to the most efficient use of paper. Paper, and the wood from which it is made, is very important in the war effort and is carefully regulated. There has been a 10 percent cut in the newspaper allowed to newspapers, and another cut of 10 percent has been postponed. Other civilian uses of paper have been cut. Naturally this makes people ask if the cuts are necessary and if the government, in cutting civilians to the minimum of paper, is being careful about its own use.

One man wrote to me about a special small government pamphlet, asking why government regulations forcing careful civilian use should not apply to the government. He said he thought the way the pamphlet was made up, with wide margins, used 25 percent more paper than necessary.

I sent the pamphlet on to Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, asking for a statement on government use of paper. A most interesting reply came from A. G. Wakeman, director of the WPB Pulp and Paper Division. Regarding the pamphlet, he said, he thought the margin was left for memoranda and notes to be written alongside the list of publications which were the subject of the pamphlet.

He said that the demand for paper by the government is expanding enormously and that the various government agencies discuss their paper problems with WPB from time to time, and he believes that they are thoroughly aware of the need to conserve. The WPB issues regulations on use of paper for civilian use, and government agencies conform to the same regulations which standardize and simplify types and thicknesses of paper. Direct control of use of paper rests with the head of each government agency within general limitations.

He referred to the committee of the House, Representative Bradley of Michigan, chairman, which has been studying government use of paper, especially the activities and publications of the Office of War Information. Representative Frank Fellows of the Third Maine District is on the Bradley committee.

The WPB Division of Pulp and Paper is responsible for the supply of materials but does not determine the policy of the various uses to which the government paper is put. That is the function of Congress, he says.

In my general study of the paper and pulp situation, I asked the American Paper and Pulp Association for figures showing the place of this industry in Maine. I find that Paper, Paperboard and Products stand first in Maine in wages paid, in value of product and in value added by manufacture. It is second in the number of wage earners employed in 1939.

The data from the Association shows that 10,955 persons are employed in the industry, exceeded only by footwear. The wages paid total $13,979,015; value of product $95,144,000; value added by manufacture $36,306,559.

Fishermen should register with local rationing boards as Group III, Institutional Users, to get the preferences which they are entitled to as workers in an essential industry. If any local board questions this they should be referred to Section 2.4 of General Ration Order number 5.

The Office of Price Administration has had the special rationing of fishermen under consideration and a decision has been made giving special rationing permits for persons who by reason of their residence or occupation cannot abide by ordinary rules, and there are many such persons in Maine.

A representative of the fishing boat skippers wired me that fishing boats could not get enough canned goods for their trips, and unless the rules were relaxed a fleet would be idle that would bring in 300,000 pounds of fish a week. Naturally, men will not go off shore without sufficient food.

Senator White took to OPA the problem of relaxation of the canned goods rations for persons living far off in the woods and I urged relaxation for these and for people on islands, as well as the fishing fleet. OPA has issued a general order of relaxation for such people, with details to be worked out, so that the relaxation will not be abused and yet all get it who are entitled to it.

INFORMING THE PUBLIC

Booklets Telling of the Film Industry's Part in War Economy

As part of a plan to inform the public of the value of the motion picture theatre as a community center in wartime, booklets are being distributed free to theatre-goers by movie houses, telling the film industry's part in the war effort. These booklets, issued in seven different versions, tell various phases of the film industry's part in the war economy and how this affects each community, and also explains co-operations with schools, public libraries, and other institutions and community organizations.

Distribution will be under the supervision of the theatre manager in each local community, according to the manager of the Strand Theatre, who will begin giving out the booklets tomorrow.

To avoid duplication, only one booklet is being assigned to a theatre, but complete coverage with the entire series of seven will be obtained by means of a special distribution schedule.

Will Enable the Central Maine To Save 20,000,000 Gallons Of the Former Annually

Through conversion of its steam plants from oil to coal the Central Maine Power Company will conserve approximately 20,000,000 gallons of oil annually according to its president, William B. Skelton.

The 27,000 horse power steam plant at Wiscasset, originally designed for fuel oil, has been operating on coal since June, 1942; the 20,000 horse power steam plant known as Bucksport No. 2 is now in process of conversion from oil to coal and is expected to be ready for coal operation by the end of the spring run-off. These changes provide duplicate facilities so that on relatively short notice the plants can be shifted to either oil or coal, as one or the other becomes available. The cost of these changes will be approximately $785,000. In addition to these two plants, the 6,500 horse power Bucksport No. 1 unit, which operates on steam from the boilers of the Maine Seaboard Paper Company, has been operated with coal since the latter company converted in June, 1942, and the Biddeford plant, which has both oil and coal facilities, has, with minor exceptions, operated on coal since April, 1942.

While these plants represent only 59 percent of the total rated steam plant capacity of the Company, they are among the Company's most efficient plants and based on expected conditions, approximately 90 percent of the kilowatt hours generated by steam will be from coal.

Water conditions greatly affect the operations of the Company since by far the greater part of the electric energy produced is from water power. During the first two months of 1943 the Company's hydro-electric plants generated 27 percent more kilowatt hours than in the same period in 1942, due to the marked improvement over the abnormally low water condition which prevailed in the same months of the previous year. Since March 1st there has been a substantial amount of precipitation on both the Androscoggin and Kennebec watersheds and we are now practically assured of having all storage filled after the spring run-off.

The Company's electric revenue for the first two months of 1943, comparing the record of the merged company in 1943 with the combined record of the two constituent companies in 1942, declined approximately 3 percent from the corresponding months in 1942, while the net output declined 3.3 percent. This decrease is due primarily to the facts that improved water conditions have reduced the purchases by power customers who have some water power of their own and have been benefited by the better conditions; that some power customers have been restricted in their less essential production and that commercial service is affected by dim-out in the coastal areas as well as other curtailments in use brought about by governmental restrictions.

Less essential activities, like the sale of electric appliances, have felt the full impact of war restrictions. The Company expects to be able to service appliances already installed; it can do little more save as restrictions are relaxed.

Once Blind Sandy Hook Pilot Joins Battle to Sink Axis

Capt. Hardy Smith, former Sandy Hook pilot, who was made blind by powdered pitch, but who recovered his sight and is now a boilermaker at Todd Erie Basin drydocks in Brooklyn, N. Y. (In insert) an artist's conception of his exciting moments on the bridge.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—This is the story of a man who gambled on his eyesight—a man who lost, and paradoxically, who won. It concerns a Sandy Hook pilot—one of those men upon whose eyesight, fast thinking and cool headedness, depends the safety of the ships, crews, cargoes and passengers threading the tortuous channel winding into upper New York bay through the Narrows from Sandy Hook.

Capt. Hardy Smith was the pilot who took the risk on a cold, blustery February day when it rained, sleeted and snowed by turns. The pilots were hoping they would not have to way at once, that unless he was at the wheel, the pilot stands out on the bridge, exposed to the elements, so that he can give the proper directions to the helmsman in the pilot house.

Suddenly the call came. "Capt. Hardy Smith—to take out a freighter from Hoboken." Arriving at the pier Capt. Smith found that the ship belonged to an old friend. The freighter's captain explained that he had to get under way at once, that unless he was at a certain coastal port with his cargo within 48 hours, he might face financial ruin.

"Sure, I'll take you out," said Smith, and they started. As they reached the Narrows, the wind began to blow and sleet began falling. The pilot felt his eyes freezing shut, and also a burning sensation on his eyeballs—something for which he could not account. He rubbed the ice from his eyes and as he faced the strong blast of wind, the burning sensation increased. Then the freighter's captain came out on the bridge.

"Your goggles, Capt. Your goggles!" he screamed. "Put 'em on! We're carrying powdered pitch! The dust

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

My thanks to your correspondents who have made suggestions about mussels. When I went over to Billy the Oysterman's this week for mussels mariniere, I asked him if he ever served them steamed or in a stew. He said he had to steam them in preparing mussels mariniere and that he would be glad to serve them either way for me at any time. Later in the evening he came around and said that a patron had just ordered a mussel stew. On my next visit I shall have one.

Cleveland Sleeper will be interested to hear that the rationing of tomatoes has resulted in some local restaurants which have been serving tomato soup with clams under the guise of clam chowder now offering patrons a real New England clam chowder with no trace of tomatoes. The Prince George is still tops among local eating places serving a real clam chowder as it should be. The best one I have ever had in New York was at the Union League Club, but it is available only to members and guests. Incidentally it was made with cream which is now limited in supply.

Some Interesting Things Noticed In Sarasota By Port Clyde Man

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

On a recent Saturday, while sitting in a car parked on Main street, I became interested in watching the crowd go by. Saturday is the day down here, just as it is in Rockland, when the folks from out of town come in to do their shopping. And how entertaining it was to look them over. About one in five of the population here is colored.

A great many soldiers and sailors are based not far from Sarasota and they were much in evidence on the sidewalks.

As for the women shoppers and sightseers, there was no end to them, nearly 50 percent of them wearing pants. The ladies were of all sizes and shape, and there was no limit to the variety of dresses and hats worn by them.

There were tall girls and short girls, fat girls and lean girls, hardly two of them dressed alike. A few were garbed in all red and some of the colored girls were a sight to behold.

One outstanding figure was a lady who would tip the scales around 185 pounds and who wore on the top of her head what looked like an upside-down saucer. It was cocked to one side and didn't give her a saucy and roguish look!

Here and there elderly couples were holding hands as in sweetheart days.

Some of the freaks attached to the Ringling Circus make their winter homes in Sarasota and several were in the throng on the streets. An outstanding couple, married, over seven feet in height, towered over everybody. They were not two beanpoles but well proportioned and when walking by themselves do not look so much out of place.

The other day just in front of me on the sidewalk, were what appeared to be two little girls and a boy. As I passed them I happened to turn around and was surprised to see that the "little girl" on the outside was a midget. She was the mother of the boy and girl with her and had the face of a woman of 60—all creased and wrinkled. She was not much over three feet in height.

There is quite a colony of Mennonites living in the suburbs of Sarasota. They are mostly farmers from the West who are now retired and they make frequent trips to town. The men are all garbed alike, in blue khaki coats and pants and wearing broad-brimmed felt hats.

They have long-flowing whiskers, but their upper lips are shaved. Sitting on a bench alongside one of them I asked him why none of them sported a moustache. He replied that the custom was a rule of the church, but would not give any reason for it. I have since been informed that they look upon the wearing of an adornment on the upper lip as a sign of pride and show. Remember Kaiser Wilhelm and his bristling pointed mustachios?

The women Mennonite wear old fashioned black bonnets, black dresses down to their heels black stockings and, judging from the size and shape of their shoes, they are not troubled with corns and bunions. This latter is more than can be said for some of the girls I know.

Incidentally I was passing the store on Main street where Mutt, the dog I wrote about, has his home. A stranger had just offered him a penny to buy ice cream, but Mutt refused to take it. He wanted a nickel. He later got it.

MILK CONTROL BOARD

Revised Schedule of Minimum Prices for Rockland, Rockport, Owl's Head, Camden, Damariscotta, Newcastle, Nobleboro, Waldoboro, Pemaquid, New Harbor, Pemaquid Point, Pemaquid Beach and Chamberlain.

The Milk Control Board does hereby establish and fix the following minimum wholesale and retail prices to be charged for milk distributed for sale within the Rockland market, so-called, for fluid consumption wherever produced. Said schedule of prices is established and fixed after investigation and public hearing thereon at Augusta, on March 29, 1943, of which hearing due notice was given and after consideration of the evidence at said hearing said prices so fixed are found to be just and reasonable, taking into due consideration the insuring of an adequate supply of pure and wholesome milk and conditions affecting the milk industry including a reasonable return to the producer, producer-dealer and dealer.

The Rockland market, so-called, means the city of Rockland and the towns of Rockport, Owl's Head and Camden, all within the County of Knox and the towns of Damariscotta, Newcastle, Nobleboro and Waldoboro and the villages of Pemaquid, New Harbor, Pemaquid Point, Pemaquid Beach and Chamberlain in the town of Bristol, all within the County of Lincoln.

REVISED SCHEDULE OF MINIMUM PRICES EFFECTIVE APRIL 1, 1943

PRODUCER-TO-DEALER OR PRODUCER TO PRODUCER-DEALER SALES

Each dealer and producer-dealer, except those buying on a weight and test basis, within this area shall pay the following prices for milk which he has purchased from producers, f.o.b., dealer's or producer-dealer's plant, which shall be $.082 per quart.

Dealers and producer-dealers buying milk on a weight and test basis from producers shall pay:

With respect to Class I milk, $3.56 per hundredweight for milk testing 3.7% b.f.

With respect to Class II milk, $2.44 per hundredweight for milk testing 3.7% b.f.

Such prices shall be increased 6c per hundredweight for each 1-10 of 1% of average butter fat content above said test, and decreased a like amount for each 1-10 of 1% of average butter fat content below said test.

With respect to 40% cream, $2.00 per gallon.

With respect to cream bought on the weight and test basis, 60c per pound butter fat.
